INTRODUCTION

In 24 states, employees of a unionized workplace can decide for themselves whether they want to join and financially support a union. In Wisconsin, this choice is extended to employees of state government. But not in Illinois; almost all government workers – including teachers, police officers and those who serve in state government – are required to pay money to a union to keep their jobs.

Because of this, government unions in Illinois have long been powerful in state politics, with the major government unions donating tens of millions of dollars to political campaigns. Since 2002, Illinois' five major government unions have spent more than $46 million on direct political contributions alone.

"The anatomy of influence: Government unions in Illinois" takes a close look at unions' political spending and the influence afforded to government unions as a result. This analysis offers an unprecedented review of the political donations to the current Illinois General Assembly, as well as top recipients of union political giving since 2002. It also highlights how profitable the business of forced unionization can be for those who run the unions by listing a sampling of the highest-compensated employees for the state's major government unions: the Illinois Education Association; Illinois Federation of Teachers; American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Council 31; and Service Employees International Union.

This book also reports how unions spend the money collected from mandatory dues, according to the unions' own filings with the federal government. In the state's largest teachers union, the Illinois Education Association or IEA, only 26 cents out of every $1 in union dues is actually spent on the union's stated reason for existence: representation of workers. The rest of the union's dues and fees revenue went mainly toward overhead, administration and political activities. Other unions also fail to spend the majority of dues money on actual representation – which is supposed to be unions' key function. At both the IEA and the Illinois Federation of Teachers or IFT, the top 20 highest-paid employees all are paid salaries of more than $100,000 annually. Cinda Klickna, head of the IEA, pulls in $235,404 annually.

In addition to salaries, money spent on politics makes up another big chunk of union spending. The Illinois Policy Institute reviewed campaign-finance reports from 2002 to 2014 and found the five major government unions in Illinois spent a combined $46 million in political campaigns in that time. That number offers just a glimpse of union political spending, as it does not include donations by local chapters of government unions.

While the vast majority of government-union political spending goes to Democrats, the review of campaign spending since 2002 showed that Republicans received nearly 17 percent of the unions' campaign spending during that time. Former Gov. Pat Quinn, a Democrat, sat atop the heap, with $11.1 million in union donations, including nearly $8 million from the Service Employees International Union.

This book illustrates how the five main government unions in the state really spend their money, based on their own self-reporting to the state and federal government. It should serve as a tool not only to help public employees understand whether they are getting their money's worth, but also for the public at large to better understand how some of the strongest forces in Illinois politics get their power.

EMPLOYMENT AND UNION MEMBERSHIP IN ILLINOIS

Over the past three decades, union membership within the private sector has decreased significantly. Meanwhile, government-union membership in Illinois has boomed since the 1980s.

In 1983, membership in private-sector unions in Illinois totaled 795,770. By 2014, membership in private unions had fallen to 434,908.

Conversely, while government-union membership in Illinois was just 267,984 in 1983, by 2014 government unions saw their ranks grow to 394,848.

OVERALL EMPLOYMENT, PUBLIC SECTOR VS. PRIVATE SECTOR

The trend of total employment in Illinois largely mirrors the private sector, which drives the economy. In the past several years, total employment has started leveling off.

---

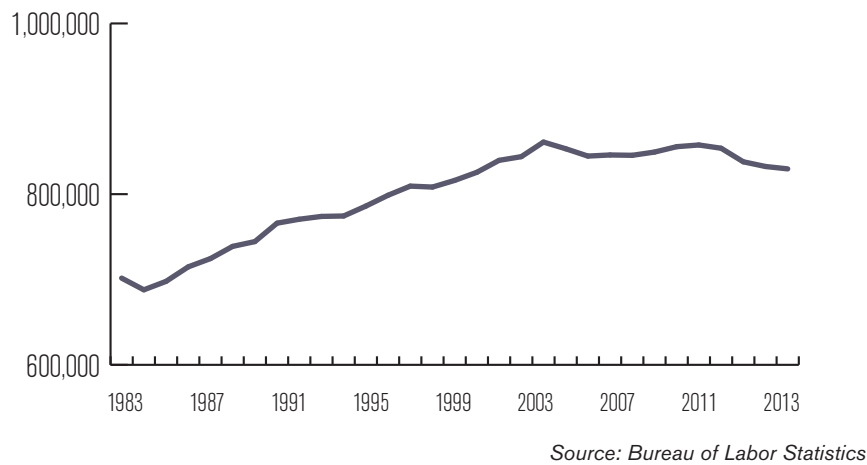

Private-sector employment in Illinois has increased by about 30 percent since 1983. Illinois has seen rapid expansions in private-sector employment, followed by declines since the 1990s. Before 1999, every time Illinois suffered through a recession the state ultimately worked its way back to net jobs creation. The same isn't true any longer – Illinois never fully recovered from the dot-com and 2008 recessions.

Graph 4: Illinois private employment: 1983-2013

Public sector employment in Illinois has risen by 18 percent since 1983. It has dropped by 3 percent since the economy crashed in 2008.

ILLINOIS EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

What is it?

The Illinois Education Association, or IEA is the union to which many of the state's K-12 educators, and other public-school educators, belong. It is a state branch of a national union that caters to education professionals. The parent union to the IEA is the National Education Association, which provides national guidance for the union's affiliates and is primarily responsible for lobbying the federal government. Beneath the IEA are multiple local unions, which are responsible for representing teachers and other staff at the district level.

Who does the IEA represent?

Its more than 133,000 members include teachers, college faculty and staff, and school support staff at public schools in Illinois.

How does IEA spend dues money?

- Only 26 cents out of every $1 in union dues is used to represent members. Meanwhile, the IEA spent 44 cents out of every $1 on overhead costs, 26 cents on administration and 3 cents on political activities.
- In 2014, the IEA spent $692,203 on hotels and $213,118 on consultants.

SERVICE EMPLOYEES INTERNATIONAL UNION

What is it?

The Service Employees International Union, or SEIU, Illinois Leadership Council has a number of affiliates in Illinois. The biggest are SEIU Healthcare (more than 57,000 members), Local 1 (about 46,000) and Local 73 (about 22,000).

Who does SEIU represent?

The union represents state workers such as janitors, security officers, doormen and window washers; employees working for the city of Chicago, Cook County, downstate offices of the secretary of state, higher education, cities and schools; and hospital, nursing-home and child care aides, as well as at-home caregivers.

How does SEIU spend dues money?

- The main SEIU locals combined spent 60 cents of every $1 on representation, 23 cents on overhead, 9 cents on political activities and 6 cents on administration.
- In 2013, SEIU Healthcare spent $533,218 on hotels, $330,637 on restaurants and catering, $345,030 on airlines, $312,687 on rental cars and $838,417 on consultants.
- SEIU Healthcare spent $49,619 on its “membership” Christmas party in December 2013. Among other Christmas party expenses, catering cost $34,556 and the tab at Binny’s Beverage, a liquor store, amounted to $6,063, lower than the $6,859 tab for its party the year before.
- SEIU Healthcare spent $7,523 for floral arrangers at an event in 2013. The year before, it spent $6,859 on Christmas decorations for the office.

GOVERNMENT UNION POLITICAL SPENDING

Since 2002, Democrats have received 82 percent of donations from the five major government unions in Illinois. The Service Employees International Union, or SEIU, gave the biggest proportion of its political money, 97 percent, to Democrats. Former Gov. Pat Quinn was the leader in union donations in this period, receiving $11.1 million, including nearly $8 million from the SEIU. The Chicago Teachers Union, or CTU, showered 96 percent of its contributions on Democrats, which isn't surprising given that Chicago is overwhelmingly Democratic. Republicans, who received 17 percent of unions' contributions, took more than a third of all political donations from the Illinois Education Association, or IEA. The other major teachers union, the Illinois Federation of Teachers, or IFT, gave 14 percent of its political money to Republicans.

GUARANTEE OF QUALITY SCHOLARSHIP

The Illinois Policy Institute is committed to delivering the highest quality and most reliable research on matters of public policy.

The Institute guarantees that all original factual data (including studies, viewpoints, reports, brochures and videos) are true and correct, and that information attributed to other sources is accurately represented.

The Institute encourages rigorous critique of its research. If the accuracy of any material fact or reference to an independent source is questioned and brought to the Institute's attention in writing with supporting evidence, the Institute will respond. If an error exists, it will be corrected in subsequent distributions. This constitutes the complete and final remedy under this guarantee.
